

Is there a tinyML application in which you think continuous training would be useful? What metrics would you use to trigger continuous training? What metrics would you use to evaluate its results?